

Audi A6 Allroad 3.0TDI Quattro

Reviewed 11/1/14

This car looks the part on and off road.

The engine on this car is a 3.0 TDI which has excellent performance considering the size of the car and its sad to say it feels a lot more refined than the VW 4x4 we test drove in December.

Inside this car is stunning the interior is a work of Art the model we drove had full leather and so many extras I can't list them I really liked the Sat Nav how it seamlessly popped out the dash and all the brushed aluminium felt very special.

Audis MMI system is also very impressive, this is computer which controls everything on the Car from the ride to the sat nav and again this is a great system and very user friendly even connecting my phone to the blue tooth was very easy, on some cars now it seems you need a degree in IT even to do this.

It's also really nice that this great looking estate car also has pretty good off road capabilities so it really give you peace of mind in the winter.

The gear change and ride on this multi-tronic gear box was extremely smooth, these German boys certainly know how to build a car!!

This really doesn't have any rivals, other companies have all road cars but not of this size. It drives great & looks good my only criticism would be its fuel economy isn't great, they maybe should have made a 2.0TDi allroad option although they do an A4 allroad 2.0tdi if your budget can not stretch to this one.
